Uncle Sam's Radio Programs Soon May Originate at Sea

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Uncle Sam is attempting to speed up his "campaign of truth" against the Communist world. Newest wrinkle developed by the department of state is a project known as "Operation Vagabond"—a powerful medium wave radio station on a fast ocean-going freighter. Approved by both the joint chiefs of staff and the national security council, the project is now being authorized by President Truman.

The first floating station is scheduled to be in operation sometime this month. If it proves successful and effective, four more will be added to form a ring of radio relay stations being built around the world.

Although existing funds are being utilized to begin operation of the first floating transmitter, the completion of the project will depend upon passage of a $97,500,000 appropriation bill, needed to finance the rest of the program. Stiff opposition, however, has been met in Congress.

The house appropriations committee, in fact, recommended that the figure be cut as low as $9,333,000, despite the appeal by Truman for the adoption of the complete transmitter program. Although the president did not mention the amphibious phase specifically, it is understood that the joint chiefs of staff have fought for it as a potent weapon in the cold war and a nucleus for a world-wide propaganda system in the event of another world conflict.

There are many secret ideas behind the project, as well, the most apparent, however, being that it will complete the ring of the U.S. radio relay stations around the world and give more scope to broadcasts everywhere.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

SCRIPTURE: John 4:6-14; Acts 10:25-28
DEVOTIONAL READING: ISAIAH 11:

One World

Lesson for September 2, 1951

How rare it is to think of persons merely as persons, without any label! We think "policeman" or "lawyer" or "soldier" or "farmer" or "Japanese" before we think "man." One of the commonest tags we use is the race-tag. So-and-so is a Negro or an Italian or a Pole or a Mexican or a Scotchman, — at least that is the way he looks to us, even before we think of Tony or Steve or whatever his name is.

We say offhand, "All Negroes are like that" or "all Mexicans are so and so" and we don't often take the time to see whether a particular Negro or Mexican is really "like that" or not. But from the Christian point of view, the first and most important fact about any person is that he is a person and not a thing.

• • •

The Lesson Race

The story of Jesus and the Samaritan woman shows how Jesus treated a person of a "low-down" race than his. We needn't argue the question whether the Samaritans were actually beneath the Jews. In any case, the Jews treated the Samaritans like dirt.

On top of all that, the particular woman with whom Jesus talked at Jacob's well was poor and with no good reputation even among her own people. The disciples were surprised that Jesus talked with her at all. But as we read the story, it is clear that while Jesus thought of her condition" as the main expression is, he was dealing with her all the time as a particular human being, not merely as "a Samaritan."

Evidently, to be sure, she was inferior to Jesus, and admitted as much herself; yet this did not raise a barrier between them.

• • •

Dominant Race

We often talk of "race prejudice" as if it were prejudice of top-dog against under-dog. But prejudice runs in both directions. Often race prejudice includes a note of contempt; but a citizen of a ruled nation may despise his conquerors, the weak may despise the strong quite as easily as the other way around.

In the Bible we have an excellent case of a Christian coming into contact with a dominant, that is, a conquering, race: the story of St. Paul and the Roman officer Cornelius.

Peter at first did not want to have anything to do with Cornelius. God had to shake him up, so to speak. But once Peter saw the point, he saw it clearly: God made no difference between Cornelius and Peter's own people, the Jews.

Peter was not for Peter to call any man, even an officer of the foreign power that occupied his little nation of the Jews severely down or unclean.

It is harder: for a Jew to treat a Samaritan like a human being than to treat a Roman the same way. Which is harder, for a white man to treat a Negro like a human being, or for a Negro to treat a white man like one? It may be hard for any, but it is Christian.

Christ There Is
No East or West"

A Scotch elder tells this story. A church had invited the Archbishop of all the denominations in the state to meet in our church and the officers of our church were to serve the communion the last afternoon. It had occurred to me that some of the delegates would be Negroes, and when I stood up to pass the bread and wine, there sat some Negro people right beside the white.

For a minute I thought I couldn't do it. In forty years as a member in the church, I had never passed the communion bread to any but white persons. And I thought, after all I was passing the bread and wine to Negroes and white people, not only to Christians. So I bowed my head with it and I never had such a blessing as I had that afternoon."

The elder had discovered that what Paul wrote is true: in the church of Christ there is neither Greek nor Jew, slave nor free; that in Christ's presence all walls that divide the human race melt like snow.

To Invite High School Classes To Va.

Richmond, Aug. 29.- The Virginia Travel Council laid plans this week to invite more than a million school children who will graduate next spring to come and see historic Virginia as the climax of their high school years. The campaign got underway last month when travel leaders from all sections of Virginia began gathering data for planned tours of the Old Dominion to send them home better Americans and at the same time entertaining enough to make them come back after their majority.

Arthur M. Wood, Jr., of Stafford is chairman of a committee in charge of the campaign.

Last year the Council invited the graduation classes of 6,500 schools to come to Virginia. This year the committee seeks to expand this activity to be all-inclusive. Several hundred thousand saw some of Virginia last year, the Council says, one natural wonder having had more than 500 tours. "In all probability," George Summerson, of Bristol, president of the Council stated, "more than 1500 groups actually visited the state."

Mr. Summerson pointed out that not only is it a great Americation job, but adds many thousands to the revenue of Virginia's accommodations, facilities and shrines. Also many graduates return to see Virginia more leisurely in later life or spend their honeymoons in the state as a result of the sample.

The Council committee is asking the assistance of the school systems in Virginia, for many visiting groups would like to meet teenagers of the places they visit. The Council thinks it is a good thing and will make Virginia youngsters brush up on their history.

SAFE RECREATIONAL WATERS IN VIRGINIA

Norfolk, Aug. 29.- Eleven years of anti-pollution effort on the waters of Hampton Roads has been climaxed with an announcement this week by Charles B. Borland, general manager of the Hampton Roads Sanitation District Commission, that nine thousand acres in the heart of the recreational waters here have been released from all restrictions.

At one time pollution in the area caused legislation to restrict direct sale of shellfish to consumers. The lifting of all restrictions naturally increases the attractiveness for boating, swimming and sport fishing in the area.

After a survey by the federal government in conjunction with the state of Virginia, the Commission declares that 95 per cent of the pollution up to 1947 has been eliminated and bacterial content reduced by an average of well over 99 per cent, based or test results of the past 12 months of operation.

In answer to the question as to the effect of the work of the Commission on recreational facilities of the area, Col. Borland told the Virginia Travel Council, "our beaches are free of pollution."
